RE: Free Artwork for Websites and Bulletins

Last week, the Legal Office wrote to you to offer some advice about parishes that have been notified about the illegal use of artwork on websites and in bulletins.

The best advice, obviously, is to avoid using screenshots you capture and images you find on Google that legally belong to someone else. As a follow up to last week's note, I wanted to offer a few solutions.

In addition to the websites below, The Leadership Institute maintains a library of artwork using pictures from personal collections or from services we have purchased and which you are free to use. We are happy to share. Email pdonovan@diobpt.org for access to the library.

These websites are excellent sources of artwork.
